Date Issued: March 9 2017	Last Revised:	Page: 1 of 1
The Library can be a very quiet and calming environment and may induce sleep in some patrons. If the sleeper is not disturbing anyone or blocking access to any needed materials, services, or areas, library staff will let the “sleeping patron lie.” If there are reasonable complaints from other library patrons or if staff come to believe an individual is in some sort of danger, the patron may be awakened to check on their well-being.
